Sees Troops Enough to Rout Cong

By MALCOLM BARR
HONOLULU (AP) — The commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific says after a visit to Saigon that there are sufficient fighting men in South Viet Nam to rout the Communists.

But Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp said in an airport interview Monday night that this does not necessarily mean there will be no further increase in the United States' manpower commitment in the Southeast Asia country.

"I can't say that necessarily. It depends on what the other side does," Sharp remarked. "You can't, in a war, ever say we've got enough now" because you don't know what the enemy is going to do."

The admiral, agreeing with Gen. William C. Westmoreland that the word against the Communists is "now being won," gave this assessment of the situation after meeting with the Army general who commands U.S. troops in Viet Nam:

"We have got enough troops in the country that we can take the offensive. Anytime we can find the Viet Cong or the North Vietnamese, we can put enough pressure on to beat them. In other words, we have the necessary forces to take the offensive and stay on the offensive, which is the important thing."

"We have enough air power in there now to do the job of supporting the ground troops. There is a fine team in there, and they're doing a hell of a good job."

Sharp, whose headquarters are in Honolulu, visited Saigon after attending a meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Canberra, Australia. He said he talked at length with Westmoreland in Saigon.

Assessing the recent air strikes against fuel depots near Haiphong and the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi, Sharp said the raids are having the desired effect.

The admiral said his talks with Westmoreland touched on the Buddhist upheavals in the south, and he observed the demonstrations had now "calmed down."

Sharp said South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky had done "absolutely the right thing" to quell the Buddhist uprisings. He said Ky used "the minimum amount of force necessary to keep the country 'lined up' and under control."

"Ky did a marvelous job," Sharp said.

Announcement..... To The Medicare Patients Of Hempstead County

The Doctors of the Hempstead County Medical Society have decided not to participate in the Physicians part (Part B) or the Medicare Program to the extent of not accepting assignments from the patient for the Social Security to pay their fees directly to us. This does not mean that we will not care for our Medicare patients. It does mean that our patients are responsible for paying us our fees. The patient can then submit a claim to the Social Security thru their carrier, for reimbursement in the amount that the Medicare allows. The carrier for the State of Arkansas will be Blue-Cross-Blue Shield. We realize that many of you will not know how to file for reimbursement. Our office will be glad to assist you.

The above decision was made after many months of worry and consideration and we believe that it is the right decision. In this way we believe that the patient-physician relationship will not be jeopardized by the involvement of a third party; namely the Social Security Administration or its Carrier.

Television and Radio

Engagement Announced

By CYNTHIA LOWERY AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Summer time has really come to television land when the premieres of two more game shows and country music half hour in the daytime schedules become a sort of event.

There is, however, a good chance that when this NBC gift package arrives on Monday, they will all slip into the TV stream without much of a splash since July 4 is a holiday notorious for getting the folks out of the house.

The new shows are "Chain Letter," which stars Jan Murray and is based on a familiar parlor game, "Showdown," which will feature a preteen rock 'n' roll group as well as the usual studio audience gamesters, and "Swingin' Country" — a music show with Rusty Draper, Molly Bee and Roy Clark.

Also on Monday comes the start of the usual summer series replacing "The Lucy Show" on CBS and called "Vacation Playhouse."

ABC's "Summer Fun" will replace "Tummy" on July 22 for seven weeks.

There is also the premiere of "Hippodrome" next Tuesday night, a show that takes over Red Skelton's CBS comedy hour.

That just about wraps up the summer activity of network television. And that also makes July the best time for a television columnist to get away for a while from tube and typewriter — which is exactly what this constant viewer proposes to do at the conclusion of this piece.

What does a vacationing TV columnist do? First, she resists the impulse to unplug the TV sets in the house, all three of them. By and large it has been a pretty uninspired year and there are few programs indeed that can merit a second look.

There is little unfinished business in television, it seems.

"The Dick Van Dyke Show" and "Perry Mason" are on their way into the happy Valhalla of reruns. Lee J. Cobb has quit the "Virginian" after growling about the show all these seasons.

And this reporter will be back in a month, writing from Hollywood and looking over the new shows, the stars to be and the programs of the season ahead.

EDITORS NOTE — During Cynthia Lowery's July vacation her daily column will be a series of guest columns by television personalities. They start on Monday. She will resume her column from Hollywood on Aug. 1.

Miss Rawna Rowe

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Alexander of Sundown, Tex., announce the engagement of Mrs. Alexander's daughter Miss Rowena Rowe to Larry Gene Reed, Miss Rowe's father was the late Mr. Marshall O'Neal Rowe Sr. of Washington, Arkansas. Mr. Reed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Beal of Houston, Texas. The couple will marry at 6 o'clock August 20 in the First Baptist Church of Sundown.

Miss Rowe graduated from Hope High School and received a B. S. degree from Ouachita Baptist University at Arkadelphia. She is presently employed as home demonstration agent of Sherman County in Texas.

Mr. Reed attended Arlington State University at Arlington, Texas, and is employed by the State Board of Insurance of Austin, Texas.

State Rights Issue in Georgia Race

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Urging a new Declaration of Independence for states rights built on self-reliance, Rep. Howard H. (Bo) Callaway has launched his campaign to become Georgia's first Republican governor in nearly 100 years.

"The battle for states rights will not be won until we in Georgia issue a new Declaration of Independence, constructed of acts and deeds and state self-reliance," Callaway told a cheering throng estimated by police at nearly 3,000 at his Fourth of July campaign kickoff rally.

Only one Republican has served as Georgia's governor in the last century and that was during Reconstruction.

The present governor, Democrat Carl E. Sanders, is limited by law to his four-year term which ends in January.

The battle to smash century-old Democratic domination in the state capitol will not be so new to the 39-year-old heir to a textile fortune.

Two years ago, he won election as the state's first Republican member of Congress since Reconstruction, and it was recognized at the time that his race for the U. S. House was probably a prelude to a campaign for governor.

Callaway said he would not disclose his platform for the governor's race until after Democrats decide in September among six candidates.

One of the Democrats, Albany publisher James H. Gray, formally opened his campaign in his hometown Monday, also keying his campaign to a strong states-rights pitch.

The other Democratic candidates are former Gov. Ellis Arnall, former Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd, State Sen. Jimmy Carter of Plains, Atlanta businessman Lester Maddox and businessman Hoke O'Kelley of Loganville.

Callaway defeated Byrd in his race for Congress two years ago.

Callaway was a Democrat until he switched parties in 1964 and became an ardent supporter of Sen. Barry Goldwater during the presidential campaign. He played a leading role in Goldwater's capture of the state GOP which initiated a drive that carried the state for the Arizona senator.

Only On Sundays

Dear Helen: I'm dating a boy that I've known for two years. We started going around together about two months ago, and we only really go on dates on Sunday because he works Saturday nights and I work Friday nights.

I would have laughed at the girl who said she had gone steady with a guy for Heaven knows how long & he never even put his arm around her, except it has happened to me — almost.

All through the week my guy walks me home, and comes over to watch TV. But when he says good-night: nothing. Only on Sunday, he kisses me once, if I'm lucky, and holds my hand in the movies, and puts his arm around me on the way home.

I don't even get hand shake during the week!

Am I too forward, or is he too backward? — 15

Dear Helen: Neither, you're hopeful and he's far from helpless — just embarrassed about showing any kind of affection in public. For a shy boy, holding a girl's hand on the street or in front of her parents is like falling down on a dance floor — he figures everybody in the world is watching.

But it's dark at the movies. . . But be glad he's the kind of guy who doesn't take advantage of that. — H.

Dear Helen: What is "charm" and how do you acquire it? Will taking a charm course help? — Seeker

Dear Seeker: Charm is the art of making people around you feel important, attractive and more alive, just because you are there. You can learn grace and poise at a "finishing school" but real charm springs from basic unselfishness; otherwise it's phony.

A charming person reaches out to others because she is truly interested in them — and suddenly they see themselves as fascinating characters because she believes they are.

To have charm you must be a little naive: And you must never lose the wide-eyed wonder that makes everything and everybody a little larger than life. — H.

Piano Player Blues

Dear Helen: When my Dad bought the piano he said I would have to practice every day or he would take my money out of the Savings and Loan to pay for it. I used to take lessons every week, but now I only have a lesson every other week so I don't think I should have to practice every day, but only every other day. I like piano, but, oh, that dullness. Don't you think I'm right? — Out of Tune

Dear O of T: I know a famous pianist who had the same problem when he was young. His mother sat with a razor strop across her lap and every time he lagged, she whacked. He practiced an hour a day, hating every minute of it, until it got big enough to take the strop away from her, and then I discovered I didn't hate the piano any more.

Does that answer your question? If you like music, bear with the dull routine of practice. It pays big dividends! — H.

Dear Helen: The girl with the deep voice should be proud of it. My sister had such a voice. When our son was born nearly deaf, she was the only one who could teach him. Her deep tones carried enough so that he learned to lip read from her, was able to attend public school and had perfect speech.

She became a nurse, specializing in speech therapy. You can always change what you think is a handicap into a blessing. A deep voice is most attractive, if it is well modulated. — E.D.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen Help YOU. She will also welcome your own practiced an hour a day, hat-

WIN AT BRIDGE

Trick Stolen
At Small Risk

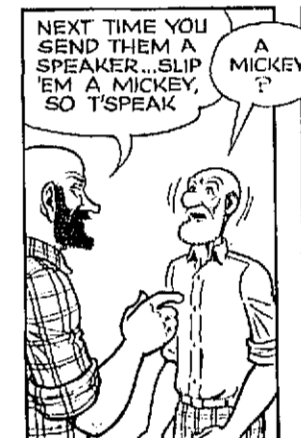

One of the things learned from duplicate bridge is that any trick is worth stealing. In rubber bridge you don't try to steal an extra trick if the attempted theft jeopardizes the contract. Or do you?

Sometimes it even pays to go after that extra trick in a rubber bridge game if the risk is a small one. Thirty points is 30 points and if you can pick up enough points you can afford to throw away an occasional game. That is, if you are prepared to explain the losses to your partner.

South won the first trick with his king of spades over East's jack. It didn't take much time to count nine nice, easy top tricks and most rubber bridge players would run off four heart tricks and hope to get a tenth trick in the club suit. After all, someone would have to discard something.

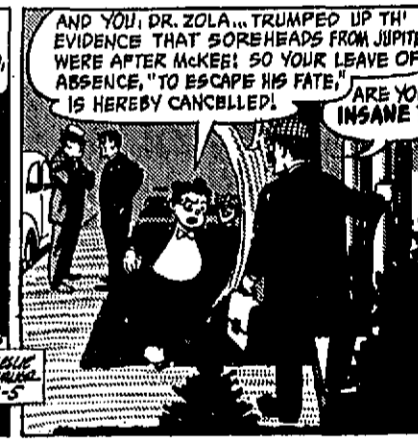

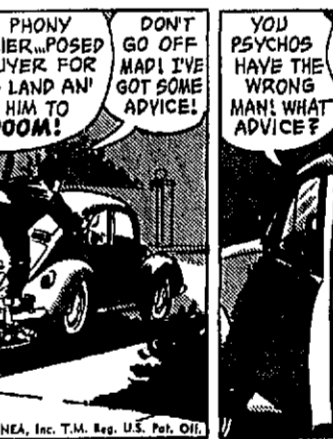

South did not think much of that possibility. His opponents both were very good players and South's two-diamond response to his partner's two-club Stayman bid denied four cards in either major so East and West would know how he held four cards in at least one minor.

Finally, South hit on another way to steal a trick. He led his deuce of clubs toward dummy. This play wasn't going to do South any good if East held the jack of clubs and might even cost South his contract if West had opened the deuce of spades from a five-card suit.

West played a low club instead of the jack. Dummy's ten won and South had his extra trick.

Kennedy Is Off Again After Floating

By JIM ADAMS
SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and a group of adventurous friends and relatives who ran the rapids-filled "River of No Return" in boats, air mattresses and a kayak were back in civilization today.

But they weren't back to rest. Kennedy — who shot the last 40 miles through some of the river's rids — planned to fly out with his family today for more vacation in Canada.

The senator abandoned the rubber boats for the kayak — a long thin covered boat with a hole in the middle for the rider — just past the halfway point in the 100-mile trip down the Salmon River's middle fork.

He said he had ridden a kayak only once before, but he maneuvered over the steep, roaring falls of the rapids between sharp rocks and shot up off "rollback" waves at the bottom

Capt. Bob Neeley of the U. S. Air Force spoke to the Hope Rotary Club on July 1 concerning low level test flights that will begin soon in this area and will continue through September 30. The test flights will be in jets traveling 200-650 miles per hour, so there will be no sonic booms heard. There will be 500 flights during the testing period and they will be held Monday-Friday.

Capt. Neeley illustrated his talk with colored slides, and he said an area in Louisiana and Arkansas in which Hope is found was selected for the tests because of its most ideal terrain and weather conditions. Incoming President Paul Klipsch introduced the speaker, after receiving the gavel of his office from retiring President Lester Sitzes.

Club guests at the noon luncheon were Paul Jones of Detroit, Mich., and Linwood Smith of Little Rock.

Would Legalise Abortion

LONDON (AP) — A special committee of the British Medical Association recommended today that abortion be legalized when the mother's health is in danger or there is risk of the baby being seriously deformed. The report probably will become the basis of future legislation.

Because of legal and ethical difficulties, the committee said, abortion should not be allowed automatically after such crimes as rape and incest.

The House of Lords recently passed a bill legalizing abortion under certain conditions. It will be introduced soon in the House of Commons.

NEW CITIES for new millions

With the nation's population burgeoning, a private organization has come up with an ambitious proposal to solve an increasingly pressing problem of public planners—what to do for living space for the tens of millions of new Americans forecast in the next few decades. The Committee for National Land Development Policy suggests nothing less than building a score or more brand-new million-plus cities in still sparsely settled areas, away from existing urban concentrations where facilities already are strained and space for orderly expansion is almost exhausted. Here is an artist's conception of the new model city outlined by the committee, composed of leaders in business, construction, banking and services throughout the nation.

A model new city would consist of a central business core (1) surrounded by "subcities" (2) with populations between 100,000 and 150,000 each and containing residential areas, industry and retail stores.

Map locates 25 possible sites for new cities.

Industry would go underground with multilevel factories.

Still War of Confusion

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The war in Viet Nam is like a blind puppy. It scampers, skips, butts its head, barks in pain. With this year almost half over, the end is still no more in sight than at the start of 1966.

There was chaos in Viet Nam, criticism at home, confusion elsewhere among Communists and non-Communists in the first half of 1966. In Indonesia the Reds suffered disaster without any war at all.

Near the end of 1965 the United States stopped bombing North Viet Nam while President Johnson sent his emissaries scuttling around overseas, talking peace, seeking signs of it. There were none. Hanoi stood firm.

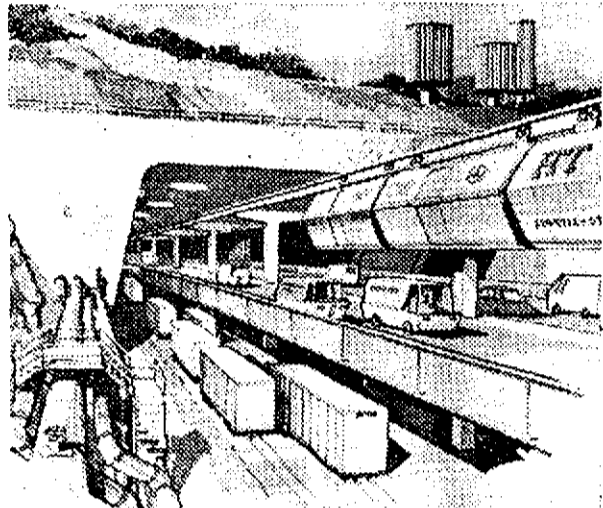

So did Johnson. The bombing was resumed. The ground fighting continued. More deaths on both sides, more U.S. troops to Viet Nam. At home the critics of the war teamed up on Johnson, in and out of Congress. Johnson ordered a restrained war, wary of the critics, concerned about the dangers, perhaps with Red China, if he stepped it up too much. And as the routine war continued chaos engulfed South Viet Nam.

Public opinion polls showed dwindling confidence in Johnson's handling of the fighting. In America youths paraded, performed and protested against the war. This was a mixed picture, too.

While some of the protesters must be credited with earnest convictions thoughtfully arrived at, for others the motivations probably ranged from a simple desire to assert themselves to discontent with things in general.

But they made noise. So did the Buddhists in Viet Nam. Right in the midst of the murky war they gyrated through the streets of Da Nang, Hue, Saigon, demanding civilian government.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and his government of generals agreed to oblige, set in motion the machinery for civilian government. Rendered ridiculous by success, the Buddhists then demanded a quick exit by the generals.

Rail, road and utility supply lines would feed directly into the subsurface factories. Rapid transit systems, also underground, would link residential and business areas.

Looking back on it, their whole performance looked irresponsible for they never made clear how they would run a government or even that they could. But they performed.

Buddhists, men and women, burned themselves to death, spread alars in the streets, multiplied anarchy. Ky suppressed them. Their futile leader, Tri Quang, took refuge in a hunger strike.

Ky grabbed him, empty stomach and all, put him in custody. The Buddhist revolt collapsed. But all this involved months, slowed the war, made many Americans wonder whether this country should be mixed up in it at all.

And even if Ky emerged looking like a strong man, this may not last in a land so unpredictable. But it was a slow six months mostly everywhere, and just as murky as Viet Nam.

In Europe, French President Charles de Gaulle, with reports indicating he never even discussed the momentous step with his Cabinet, decided to do a wrecking job on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He decided to pull his troops out of NATO. It was a shattering thing. It could have been a disaster for the Western alliance. Sometime it may prove to have been just that.

But the other 14 NATO allies patched the pieces together and De Gaulle made a trip to the Soviet Union, although nobody seems to know why, perhaps not even De Gaulle. Years from now he may seem to have been as irresponsible as Tri Quang.

Tensions, however, were off the United States if only because tensions between the Soviet Union and Red China increased. While they fussed and fumbled communism encountered a disaster where unexpected and without battle.

The pro-Red Indonesian government of President Sukarno was taken over by the military. Indonesian Communists by the thousands were reported slaughtered, and the country now will probably turn pro-West.

Construction in Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Premier Thanom Kittikachorn says Thailand's new constitution will be promulgated Jan. 1.

Thanom told Thai newsmen Prince Wan Waihayakorn, chairman of the committee studying the draft of the constitution, had informed him the document would be ready by the end of the year. The committee has been working on the draft for the past seven years.

MOUNTAIN MIXTURE—In a scene slightly incongruous, a little Kirghizian girl plays in her toy auto near the tentlike home of her shepherd parents. This photo, from Soviet sources, illustrates the strange life of thousands of these shepherd families who drive their herds to mountain pastures near Issyk Kul Lake in Soviet Asia about 100 miles from the Chinese border. While costumes and their life are linked to the past, toys evidently, are very modern.

What's in a New Car Name? Plenty, Auto Makers Say

THE NAMING GAME in the automobile industry isn't as simple as it used to be. The Ford Motor Co., for example, took three years to find a name for Lincoln-Mercury's new car, the Cougar.

By ROBERT COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In the early days of the automobile industry, naming new cars was easy.

A fellow simply built a horseless carriage and put his own name on it. So shoppers had their choice of (to name a few): (Alexander) Winton, (Harry) Stutz, (Childe) Harold Wills, (Walter) White, (E.R.) Thomas, (Charles) Metz, (Jonathan) Maxwell, (Howard) Marmon, (Ned) Jordan, (Fred) Duesenberg and (Charles) Duryea.

These men are now dead and so are their cars, but autos named for David Buick, Louis Chevrolet, Ransom Olds, Horace Dodge, Henry Ford, Walter Chrysler and Chief Pontiac are still available.

Today, the president of an auto company simply does not suggest that his own name be used on a new model. Otherwise, people would be driving Iaccocas, Roches, Abernethys, Donners, Loves and Townsends.

The Ford Motor Co. once tried to revive the personality cult with the Edsel, (a Ford president).

Auto-branding today is practically a science and Ford, perhaps remembering the Edsel, takes it seriously.

That's why finding the right name for the S-77, Lincoln-Mercury's new car, took three years. The Mercury Cougar, a "personal" car designed to fill the gap between the Mustang and Thunderbird, debuts in September.

Says Frank Zimmerman Jr., Lincoln-Mercury Division general marketing manager:

"In today's auto market, consumers consider not only the utility offered by the product but they are also concerned with the

A few months ago, when The Girl From U.N.C.L.E. was first announced, Robert Vaughn told me he would never appear on it. And he said it with an air of finality, too.

I saw him again, just a few days ago, on the set of "The Venetian Affair" at MGM and he had changed his mind. Both he and David McCallum, the men from U.N.C.L.E., will make a few appearances on the spin-off that's a spin-off that has sold.

"I'll do one or two of them," Vaughn says now. "I didn't want to, but they wanted me to, so I finally agreed—in return for certain concessions in another area. The other area is the area of money."

"THE VENETIAN AFFAIR" is a taut spy story, taken from the best-selling book by Helen MacInnes. Vaughn has an accompaniment of beautiful women—Elke Sommer, Luciana Paluzzi and Felicia Farr.

For Elke, this marks the first time she has died in a movie. It is a milestone, of sorts. And, apparently, she did it well because she's going to die again in her next, Deadlier Than the Male.

That will be shot in London and Rome. After that's over, she hopes to do "Belladonna," which her husband, writer Joe Hyams, will produce.

"Then I have two more commitments," she says. "And then maybe I can start to have a family. I want to have children while I'm still young enough to enjoy them."

FELICIA FARR, Jack Lemmon's wife, is mother of Vaughn's girls in "The Venetian Affair." This time she plays a relatively

Dominican Army Still Coup-prone

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — For a Sunday night, the National Palace seemed unusually busy. The president was in.

The opposite corner, 150 yards away, was dark. This meant the military chiefs were out.

By itself this circumstance wasn't altogether uncommon. But for days the atmosphere had been alive with rumors and signs of a budding military coup against the provisional government, and for that reason the palace situation appeared alarmingly significant.

The date was Oct. 25, 1965. It was to mark the climax of another of many crises that nearly destroyed the provisional regime, the vehicle through which the Organization of American States restored constitutional government to this revolt-shattered country.

The elections last June 1 and next Friday's inauguration of Dr. Jaquin Balaguer as president crown the 15-month Dominican pacification effort by the OAS and the equally important task of the nine-month-old provisional government.

The achievement demonstrated that, at least in a situation like the Dominican Republic's, collective hemisphere political action must be supplemented by its own peace-keeping force to make policy really effective.

Without the 8,000-man six-nation Inter-American Peace Force, the Dominican provisional government would not have survived.

Equally essential to its survival were the determination and personal courage of the provisional president, Hector Garcia Godoy, a mild-mannered lawyer-diplomat who took a job no Dominican wanted.

This became evident most dramatically on that October night.

In the palace, the bald, mustached president sat with a few members of his Cabinet—awaiting something, but not certain just what. When the president sought to leave the building, a member of the palace guard turned him back with a friendly warning: "Mr. President, please do not leave. There are superior orders to shoot you."

Garcia Godoy did not question the source of the "superior" order. The military bosses were angry at the executive. They wanted authority to launch a cleanup of civilian snipers attacking army regulars in the downtown area, once the stronghold of a rebel movement.

The president had refused. Weeks of negotiating had reunited the divided capital through the removal of physical barriers and the evacuation of rebel troops from downtown. Diehards who opposed the negotiations, mostly well-armed left-wing extremists, remained behind and had been attacking an army battalion.

The president would not allow a massive military movement into the heart of Santo Domingo. He feared a renewal of the vicious fighting, such as had exploded into near-civil war April 24, might result in toppling the government and occupation of the country by the inter-American force.

Knowing they'd have to confront the hemisphere force—pledged to support the government—if they moved against the president, the military leaders waited. Nothing happened. After a few days the peace force entered the downtown area and restored calm. Another crisis was over.

Twice before, on Sept. 25, the night before ex-President Juan Bosch arrived, and later, on Jan. 6, when Garcia Godoy ordered 34 military leaders of rival factions in the revolution to diplomatic jobs abroad, the president confronted make-or-break situations that nearly overwhelmed his government. On two occasions he was on the verge of resigning.

An ironic twist is that he now considers as one of the two most important achievements of his government, the "neutralization" of the military.

The other is the creation, however temporary, of a broad political middle ground on which, as he once put it, "Dominicans of the ideological left and the right can meet and work harmoniously in the national interest." Proof of this, he feels, was the presidential contest in which the major contenders were largely middle-road groups.

These and other accomplishments have given Garcia Godoy and his collaborators—mostly nonpolitical professionals—considerable stature among Dominicans. Many believe the job has earned Garcia Godoy consideration as a presidential candidate in 1970.

Critics argue the president coddled labor and permitted left-wing extremists to infiltrate and seize control of some unions the National University and judiciary.

Hoople Collects! Invents Fabulous Fishing Bait in Our Boarding House

Royalties Go To Award Fund

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (NEA) An amazing new fishing bait invented in the comics by Major Amos Barnaby Hoople will be produced and marketed by The Fred Arbogast Company of Akron, Ohio, it was announced here today.

The lure, which will be called the Hula Hoople, was invented by The Major in a recent sequence in his daily comic panel, Our Boarding House. The Major appears on the comic pages of nearly 700 daily and Sunday papers.

Royalties normally paid for the use of a comic character in commercial enterprises will be used by Major Hoople's distributors, Newspaper Enterprise Association, with matching funds by The Arbogast Co., for a program of recognition awards in the field of wildlife management and conservation.

The Hula Hoople is a jointed "stick bait," a fast-action lure designed to attract game fish to the surface or take them just below the surface.

Announcement was made before the annual meeting of the Outdoor Writers Association of America by Richard Kotis, President of the Arbogast Co., and Meade Monroe, Vice President.

dent and General Manager of Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Monroe and Kotis made the first award in the recognition program to John Gartner, president of the Outdoor Writers. He is editor of Western Outdoors, a regional monthly publication. It was a check for $650 to the Outdoor Writers Scholarship Fund. The fund is being raised to grant aid to worthy students who intend to pursue careers in the field of outdoor journalism.

In addition to the $650 "Major Hoople" grant made today, another grant will be made next year directly to a student planning to embark on a career in the field of wildlife management or conservation writing.

Also announced was a continuing program of recognition awards in the form of "Hoople Honors for Conservation" plaques and certificates of achievement. All will be made in the name of The Arbogast Co., and NEA on behalf of Major Hoople.

Recipients, either groups or individuals, will be nominated by newspaper sports editors and outdoor writers. Members of the committee will be announced later.

Polly's Pointers

Recipe for 'Salt Castle'

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—I have a recipe for a "Salt Plant" or "Salt Castle" as it is sometimes called which was requested by Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Place small pieces of cinder, brick or porous rock or even pieces of sponge in a shallow glass bowl (do not use metal) after they are washed but still wet. Arrange as desired.

In another glass jar mix four tablespoons water, four tablespoons laundry bluing and four tablespoons ammonia. After mixing, pour these over the wet bricks or whatever you have, being sure to dampen all the pieces. Scatter a few drops of vegetable coloring over this and a few more drops of the bluing. Sprinkle four tablespoons of salt evenly over all. A small plastic flower or two can be edged among the rocks for a pretty effect.

In a few hours crystals will begin to form and after two days mix two tablespoons ammonia with two tablespoons water and very carefully pour in the edge of the bowl. Do not hit the growing crystals while pouring or they will disappear. Growth will continue as long as this is repeated each second day. With a damp tissue wipe off any growth over the side of the dish as it may fall on the table top and mar the finish.—FERNE

DEAR POLLY—When you lose one good leather glove put the other one to work. This leather makes a smart binding for buttonholes or for covering buttons.

Use the leather to edge sleeves or pockets that get hard wear or to patch your tot's jackets and outdoor playsuits.—ROSE

DEAR POLLY—I do odd jobs for people in our town and always like to get all the grease and grime off my hands at the end of a day. Apply a bit of sugar to the lather being used and it removes grime like magic.—WILBUR

DEAR POLLY—An old spray bottle filled with turpentine (and so marked) is handy to have around to use when cleaning paint or grease off the hands.—HELEN

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—We each have a problem. My husband wants to know how to clean rusty tools. I would like to utilize old neckties. My daughter would like to know how to stop fuzz from shedding off a white angora sweater. My son would like to know how to best display prize ribbons won for racing and other sports.—IDA

DEAR READERS—I know you will come to the aid of this family who ALL need help.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When one of my knitted dresses or skirts gets a bit too tight, I slip the garment over the back of a chair which is a bit wider than the skirt and let it stay there for a few hours. When removed, it fits nicely and there is no need of blocking.—MRS. J. S.

Anyone submitting a Polly's Problem, a solution to a problem or a favorite homemaker idea will receive a dollar if Polly uses the item in Polly's Pointers.

Hospitals Brace for Medicare Invasion

By TOM NOLAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There were several excellent reasons for starting Medicare this July 1, but some Administration officials—nervously eyeing next November's elections—find them tough to remember as zero hour nears. To them, the overriding fear is that the elections are too convenient a vehicle for registering protests, should the largest health program in the nation's history stub its toe at the starting gate.

But, basically, the Administration's mood on Medicare is one of guarded optimism. Social Security Administration officials, who will run the program, contend it will be a success from the start.

Others are not so sure. "Our greatest problem is public ignorance," says one source. "No matter how well Medicare's provisions are spelled out, an awful lot of old people are not going to know how extensive their coverage will be until they hit the cashier's window at the hospital."

"And some of their costs just might not be covered." Medicare raises other potential problems, each one capable of causing political disaster.

• An elevation of medical costs for all patients. Hospital expenses will probably rise, but how much of this increase can be blamed on Medicare is debatable.

In recent years, the annual climb in hospital costs has been about 7 per cent, mostly because of a competitive labor situation. By 1971, when all hospitals will have to conform with federal minimum wage and unemployment standards, this escalation could be much higher.

Doctor bills are likely to increase also, but this, too, has been in the works for years.

The fixed-fee schedules relied on by the nation's 76 non-profit Blue Shield plans will be gradually replaced by Medicare's more liberal system of setting doctors set their own charges within broad limits. But some of these schedules haven't been raised for several years, says the Social Security Administration, and an increase was imminent.

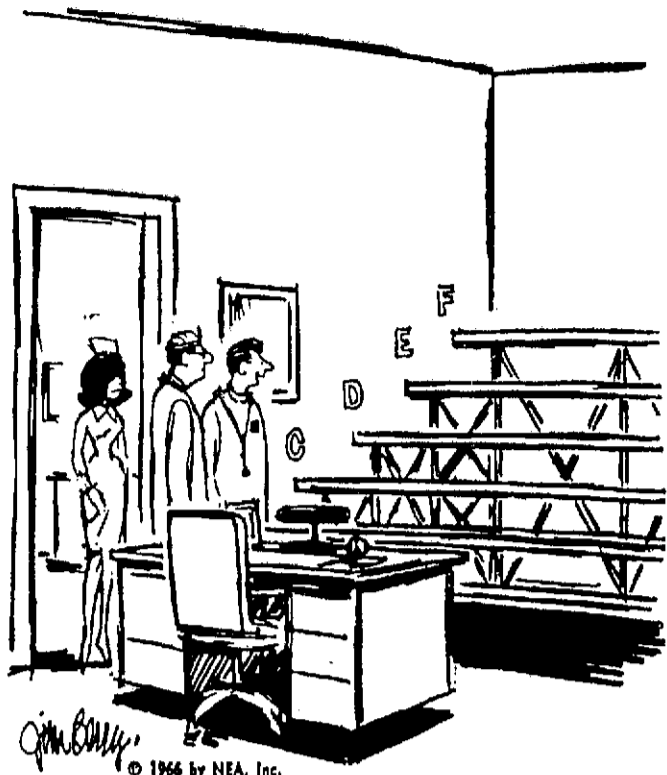

• Overcrowded and understaffed hospitals, aggravated by the extra demands of Medicare, might not be able to maintain high standards of care for everyone. But the program will only spotlight, rather than cause, any problems here, says its backers.

The present shortage of nurses, interns and resident physicians could well become the nation now report occupancy rates higher than 90 per cent. Many of these are in the South where, ironically, some hospitals are in the process of converting double rooms to singles. ## Topless Group Covers Up

SPOLETO, Italy (AP) — Toplessness being taboo in Italy, Sierra Leone's national dance troupe made its much-heralded debut Tuesday night at the Spoleto Festival of Two Worlds with the female dancers' breasts covered most of the time.

The 45-member troupe of singers, dancers and musicians from 13 tribes in the African country performed for more than two hours before a capacity audience of 1,200 delighted spectators.

Elephant Eats 3 Pound Chain

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Morganelta, a 1½-year-old elephant at Forest Park Zoo, has eaten the padlock and a 9-inch chain on her cage — about three pounds of metal.

Animal experts have assured zoo officials the only treatment is to let the digestive tract take its natural course.

Zoo officials diagnosed her case by applying a metal-detecting device to the outside of her stomach. They had noticed she seemed a bit sick and the lock and chain were missing.

Collins Plans to Resign

WASHINGTON (A) — Undersecretary of Commerce LeRoy Collins says he will resign Oct. 1 and return to Florida where he formerly was governor to become a partner in a Tampa-based law firm.

On previous occasions, Collins has said he is interested in seeking the seat of Sen. George A. Smathers who has said he will not seek re-election in 1968 because of ill health.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

How Much Religious Liberty?

"The crowning glory of American freedom," wrote one exultant judge, "is absolute religious liberty."

Yet, is "absolute" the right word? Are there really no limits at all to our religious liberty?

The great, historic test of this question arose a century ago when a Mormon was arrested for polygamy. In his defense he relied on the constitutional guarantee of religious freedom.

But the Supreme Court drew a momentous line dividing that freedom into two parts: freedom of belief and freedom of practice. The Court said freedom of belief has no limits, but freedom of practice must necessarily have limits.

if society is going to function successfully.

Otherwise, said the Court, any anti-social act—including even human sacrifice—would be lawful if it bore a religious label.

"Every citizen (would) become a law unto himself. Government could exist only in name."

Thus, in assorted test cases, courts have held it illegal—even for religious reasons—to use child labor, to violate a liquor law, to curse a policeman, or to handle snakes dangerously in church. However sincere the defendant's religious belief, his religious practice went beyond what society could fairly permit.

Nevertheless, in each one of these cases, the court acted only because the need for setting limits seemed very clear indeed. By and large, the law has bent over backward to avoid putting limits on religious practice.

For instance, courts have upheld the right of religious partisans to ring doorbells (even if that might annoy some folk) and to hand out leaflets (even if that might cause litter).

Furthermore, under the sturdy constitutional shelter, unusual forms of worship continue to sprout and flourish.

So our religious freedom, if not quite "absolute," is reassuringly close to it—just as the Founding Fathers intended.

"They fashioned a charter of government," the Supreme Court has said, "which envisaged the widest possible toleration of conflicting views. Man's relation to his God was made no concern of the state."

A Summer Hat Can Be A Girl's Best Friend

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A hat may never replace a diamond as a girl's BEST friend, but it can be her helpmate.

First of all, it adds flair to her summer look. Second it gives her protection from sun and soot.

From coast to coast we live in arid, poisonous air weighing more than our yearly production of steel. And since this air has the strength to deface the steel and mortar of buildings it certainly doesn't glorify our hair.

Normal hair care isn't enough to combat this. But there's one simple solution. Wear a hat.

Store shelves are brimming with light, airy, packable summer hats. They come in denim, cotton twill, organdy, crushable straws, ribbon and raffia knits, all in spirit-lifting colors.

Many are inexpensive and there is a style to flatter every face.

Particularly effective to protect your hair from summer grime is this cool yellow silk wrap-up highlighted by softly draped tuck framing the face and back tie. (Adelle 11)

Why not protect your shining tresses and add dash to your summer costumes with perky, colorful, lightweight hats?

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

No Sure Cure Known For Fingernail Problem

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—All my fingernails crack clear down to the cuticle. What can I do about this?

A—This is a common complaint, especially in women. The cause is unknown, but it is usually worse in older persons than in the young. There is no sure cure. Several nail hardeners are available but they are of doubtful value.

The same is true of special diets for this condition. The best treatment is to cut your nails short to prevent their catching on various objects and to protect them with gloves when you do any manual labor.

Q—Is there any cure for a fungus infection of the nails?

A—Deep-seated fungus infections of the nails are admittedly hard to cure but a course of griseofulvin by mouth, combined with local applications of Advicyn, should clear up the infection within three months unless the fungus is Candida (Monilia), in which case tetracycline phosphate with nystatin would be more effective.

Q—For many years I have had white spots on my fingernails. What causes them and how can I get rid of them?

A—These spots are due to imperfect development of the nails as they leave the growth center under your skin. This may be caused by injury to the matrix or to separation of the nail from the underlying nail bed. The condition is no threat to your health. No treatment is known but nail lacquer will mask the spots.

Q—What causes my toenails to become so hard I can't cut them? Is there any remedy for this?

A—The cause may be a hereditary trait, poor circulation due to wearing shoes that are too short, a fungus infection or psoriasis. Finding the cause is the first step toward treatment but at best a cure is likely to prove difficult.

Q—Which foods contain keratin, the substance that makes the nails strong? A—Keratin is a hard protein that is found in skin, hair, nails and teeth. Your body makes its own supply and various diets, advocated to lend your body a helping hand with this task, have been disappointing. By the same token, biting your nails and swallowing the pieces will not solve your problem.

Q—My doctor says I have circulatory stasis. What is it? Can it be cured?

A—This is sluggish circulation. It can cause cold hands and feet and it increases the likelihood of clots forming in your veins. Your doctor must discover the underlying cause before he can offer you anything more than symptomatic relief.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Those GI Rations Really Last

by Gaynor Maddox, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have two sons in the armed services. I've been wondering how long those canned rations they get stay good? Do you know?

A—At the Natick, Mass., laboratories of the U.S. Army, food technologists recently opened a canned ration packed in 1918. The contents were taste-tested and all components were found to still be in edible condition. The can contained three 1-ounce chocolate bars, 1 gram pepper, 3/4-ounce salt, 1/2-pound bread, and a meat component.

The directions for preparing the bread and meat suggested that they could be eaten dry, stirred into cold water, boiled as a soup, or made into a thick porridge to be eaten hot or cold. In summarizing the testing, the Natick laboratories report said: "The container components and packaging materials of the World War I Emergency Ration show a good state of preservation and quality more than 46 years from date of pack."
